Denying that an Egged share was now worth IL90,000, Mr. Shifman said its value was nearer IL70,000 "and people are worried about their savings and investments." He noted that the Transport Minister had offered 18 per cent rise in tariffs, plus IL 28m., whereas Mr. Sapir was only ready to speak of 10 per cent. This, Mr. Shifman considered, was a breach of the Kashti Committee's findings, which Egged considered binding on the Government.

The Egged spokesman firmly refuted the report (from a recent Ca-binet meeting) that an Egged mem-ber's monthly income was II.4,000 including wages and fringe benefits. "We work 10-12 hours a day, 30 days a month, and earn gross wages of IL1,650 plus 7.5 per cent awayfrom-home expenses, as well as extra pay from overtime," he stated. announced here yesterday that he does not plan to run for office again. (Municipal elections are scheduled for a year from now.) Speaking at a specially convened press conference, he said, "Over 20 years in office are more than enough for any one man." Mr.

Mr. Eylon became Holon Mayor in 1952 and will have been in office for more than 31 years next election day. He told the press that he had already sent a letter explaining his decision to the local Labour Party branch: In that letter he urged the Party to get down to the task of choosing a new mayoral candidate for Holon. Israel's fifth largest city.

"A new generation of younger candidates should be nominated to infuse new energy and fresh ideas in the city management," the 63-year-old Mayor said. It would appear that Mr. Eylon is declining to endorse any members of his present administration (such as Deputy Mayor David Zadok or City Clerk David Chonsky) for the office of mayor. Mayor Eylon added that, while

Cabinet c'ttee to decide on bus fare hike

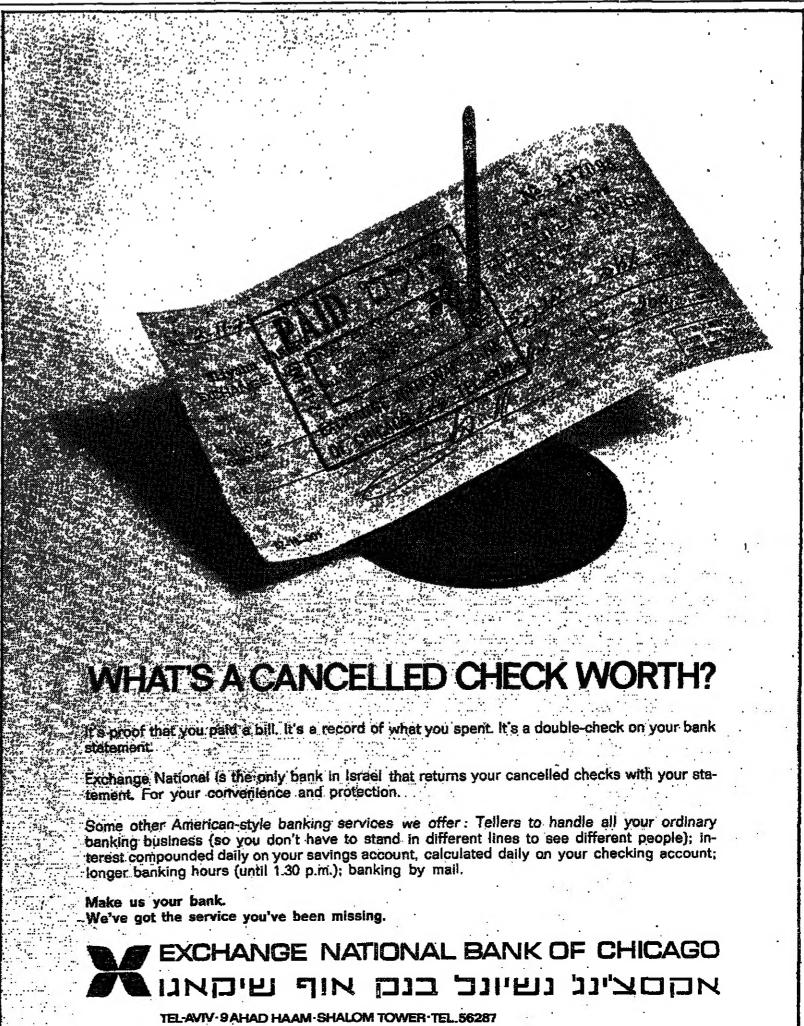

Three Cabinet ministers have been appointed as an ad hoc committee to fix the amount by which Egged and Dan bus fares will be

The Cabinet yesterday empowered Finance Minister Pinhas Sapir, Justice Minister Y.S. Shapiro and Transport Minister Shimon Peres to decide on its behalf about the demands of the two bus co-ops. They want to raise farcs immediately, receive a larger regular subsidy from the Treasury on account of their increased costs, and receive special retroactive compensation for increased costs over the past few months. Although the bus co-ops have been asking to raise fares by roughly a third, the Treasury and the Transport Ministry agree that the co-ops' costs have gone up some 18 per cent. Where the two Ministries disagree, however, is over how the 18 per cent increase will be shared between the three parties involved — the passengers, the Treasury and the co-ops themselves.

The Justice Minister was put on the committee because the question arose in yesterday's Cabinet session as to how far the agreement signed last year between the Transport

Sen. Kennedy: Preservation of Israel should be first U.S. goal

NEW YORK (UPI). — Sen. Edward Kennedy said on Saturday the pre-servation of Israel should be the first goal of U.S. foreign policy, short of self-preservation.

"Short of our own preservation as a nation, there can be no great-er goal of American foreign policy than the preservation of Israel," the Massachusetts Democrat told a crowd of 700 attending a Jewish charity dinner.

"Over the years my family and I, like yourselves, have had many personal associations with the citizens of Israel, associations which we cherish and honour deeply, Mr.

Speaking on behalf of Democratic presidential candidate George Mc-Govern, Mr. Kennedy said, "Let's Govern, Mr. Remedy said, 1888 begin by electing a president like George McGovern and men and wo-men in Congress and at state and local levels who can lead America out of this present wilderness and back into the mainstream of the heritage our fathers handed us."

'McGovern was biggest liar' in his class

WASHINGTON (AP). — In an unusually sharp White House reference to George McGovern, President Nixon's top domestic adviser has said he remembers in his youth "that the minister's son was he biggest liar in the class." Sen. McGovern, the Democratic party U.S. presidential nominee, is the son of a minister and a former Methodist minister himself. John Ehrlichman, head of the President's Domestic Council, commented to reporters at the presidential retreat at Camp David that Mr. McGovern's effort to portray the current American economic situation "as worse than it was when the previous administration went out is patently false.

"I remember very well when I was a kid that the minister's son was the biggest liar in the class," Mr. Ehrlichman said, "I'm afraid that maybe we've got something of that kind confronting us in this political election."

Tools for the efficient ... and those who want to be

By MACABEE DEAN

TEL AVIV. - Efficiency begins in the way a person organizes matters in his own head; Machines and equipment are only the practical extensions of such

This, more or less, is the idea behind the "Office Equipment exhibition," which opened yester-day at the Tel Aviv Fair Grounds. Some 15,000 persons interested in various phases of making their lives easier, smoother and more profitable are ex-pected to visit the exhibition before it closes this Thursday evening. It is not open to the general public.

Invited visitors, numbering 1,700 would-be efficiency experts are expected not only to look at the variety of equipment on dis-play scattered over 2,400 sq.m. of floor space, but also to partici-pate in "study days." Thus, they will not only come to look at new items, but try to grasp the full impact of their use.

Some 10 themes will be pre-sented on the four days the exhibition is open. For example, one theme is "How to Reduce the Amount of Paper Work and to Simplify That Which Re-mains." Another deals with "Me-thods of Making Work more Ef-ficient in the Small Undertakficient in the Small Undertaking," and still another is "Office Efficiency in the Kibbutz,"

These study days will start at 8.30 a.m. and last till noon. The equipment itself will be on display from one p.m. until eight p.m. The exhibition was arranged by the Fair Grounds in cooperation with the Tel Aviv Chumber of Commerce and is under the aegis of the Productivity Instiefficiency in Israel? Old-fashioned comfortable chairs to sit in, organizational charts, and new methods of duplicating documents (printing both sides of a docu-ment at once), there are special items for microfilming, interoffice communications "to keep the office personnel from running around to check each little thing") and for reproducing soft music and installing sound-proofing materials.

The variety is great, especially in sophisticated apparatus such as calculating machines with "memories" and duplicating ma-chines which not only reduce the size of the print in size by 50 per cent, but also can provide 250 copies in 12 minutes. One fairly large section is devoted to filing methods. There are 64 exhibiters in the exhibition, and they represent 180 firms, whose home offices are in 13 foreign countries, as well as in Israel.

The country which has sent the most exhibits in is Japan, followed by West Germany. The U.K. ranks third, followed by the U.S. and Italy. Smaller exhibits have been sent from other European countries.

Concealed unemployment

By HOWARD BLAKE Labour Minister Yosef Almogi nounced on May 30 that a ulti-million-pound eration was being launched to ed out "concealed unemployent." 'Too many people are do-; too few jobs," he said. Un-oductive workers would be re-ained for more productive aks. The labour shortage and e necessity for increased effiency made this move necessary. ad he said that a staff of econnists and production engineers suld weed out concealed un-sployment wherever they found without fear or favour, in vernment as well as in indus-

It was a thrill to see Almogi ring right into action, starting the very top. On June 11, less an two weeks after the anuncement, Justice Minister Ya'ov Shimshon Shapiro suddenly signed on two days' notice. He asn't replaced and nobody noed any difference. In no time all there even seemed to be ore justice going around than fore; for instance, I gave six ndkerchiefs to the laundry and t back seven. "Hats off to Almogi's Raiders!" shouted from the rooftops de-ite my acrophobia. "One Cabit Minister's salary saved al-ady! Almogi fears no man! Alogi for Prime Minister!"

Can you imagine what would the happened at the Justice mistry if a filing clerk had it on only two days, notice? ney'd have had to close down! it Shapiro's leaving didn't cause ripple. Except that the staff at ie Ministry made a Finnish earn bath out of his office for vesting out suspects when they eren't using it themselves. And hen the Prime Minister tried to id out what the Justice Min-ter's duties actually were and body could tell her, she took er the job herself in addition all her other jobs and gave it out five minutes a week.

Getting to work

Almogi rolled up his sleeves; he id only begun. Little did he spect the diabolical turn events ould later take.

With Shapiro under his belt he gan to tackle Israel Galili, inister without Portfolio. If a inister with a portfolio was so spensable, imagine how easy it ould be to get along without Minister who has no porfolio all, no visible means of suport whatsoever, a meer hangerwho goes sneaking around th an attache case that looks te a portfolio, drawing the me Cabinet Minister's salary as or Shimon Peres for instance, to has Transport and Communirget for Almogi's Raiders! Not at Galili would suffer, because plan was to retrain him an equally responsible post a taster at the Sugat Sugar orks in Kiryat Gat. Whenever sugar didn't taste sweet ough he would add more sugar. And to prove to the nation. yond any doubt that he would mogi started to go after Knes-Members of the opposition

That is real unemploy-cealed. At a Knesset session in September, Haim Landau, Gahal, complained that the Prime Minister had said that it's the right One company, subsidized by the of the majority to make the decisions. "Maybe the minority is superfluous altogether," Mr. Landau said "They could just have reports sent to their homes have reports sent to their homes on what the majority had de-cided." And the Prime Minister had replied, "If Gahal puts for-ward such a proposal for dis-cussion we'll take it up." So it looked as though Almogl had an open and shut case of concealed unemployment against members of opposition parties, with the backing of the Prime Minister. At the same time some of Al-mogi's Raiders were already working in industry. They were going around asking employees,

"And what don't you do?" They found one company with two head bookkeepers, one in charge of Profit and the other in charge of Profit and the other in charge of Loss. The company blamed it on the Bookkeepers Union. The union maintained that Profit and Loss are two entirely different things, and no union was ever more right than that! But Almogi's Raiders looked over the books and found nothing but red ink since the company was founded in 1944. So they blasted through the moss and cobwebs that had gradually enveloped the bookkeeper in charge of Profit, brought him back to life, and sent him to be retrained as a croupler for the casino scheduled for Mishmar Ha'emek.

Compliments Dept.

They found a manufacturer who had one man in charge of Complaints Department, working 72 hours a week and still not able to cope with the flood of nasty letters, threatening phone calls, and lawsuits; and right next to him was another man who never had a single thing to do. He was in charge of the Compliments Department. The company hadn't received a compliment for seven years but they wouldn't give up hoping. Almogi told the company's board of directors that Compliments would have to go or they'd have to better the product.

At another company they found a girl in the Mailing Department whose only job was to examine the stamps on every piece of incoming mail and save for re-Office cancelling machine missed The company couldn't save enough

Government, was making so much money that it was afraid of losing its subsidy. Somehow they had to increase expenses. They solved the problem by hiring unemployed actors and tell-ing them to act busy. But Almogi's Raiders saw through this gimmick and wound up with a list of 17 employees they discov-ered just acting busy and told the company they'd have to be discharged. But the company said something was wrong they had only engaged 10 actors. It turned out that the other seven had been regular employees for over ten years.

salary for a Minister of Justice is in the budget already, and every man should have some place to go where he can get away from the house. Also, it doesn't look nice not to have a Minister of Justice." So Ya'acov Shimshon Shapiro is now back on the non-job, taking steam baths all day long. And what did the Minister of Labour do about this utter humiliation, this complete frustra-tion of his best-laid plans? Yosef Almogi, my crusader, my big hero did he give vent to his in-dignation? Did he shout that the fight would go on? Did he even call a press conference and resign in righteous wrath? No. He put his tail between his legs and sat on it. He didn't say a word. The subject of concealed unemployment hasn't been heard of since. And the rumour is that Almogi's Raiders are being retrained. Israel Galili is still slinking around the back streets without a portfolio, members of the opposition parties still wake up only on pay day, and there is such a demand from companies on Government subsidy for employees who can act busy, that the Theatre Arts Department of Tel Aviv University, has started a crash course in this new profes-

But I have faith. A new hero will arise, pick up the fallen cud-gel, and lead a brave new at-tack on concealed unemployment that will not fail. And before the rank and file feel his fury, heads will roll again in the highest echelons.

Which reminds me. Just what is Almogi not doing these days?

According to Dr. Yaacov Shahar of the Ministry of Commerce and Industry, Israel's exports to that mission that will visit that country area in 1971 represented a 41 per cent increase over the 1970 figure. Statistics for the first eight months of this year show a rise of 47 per cent over the same period a year ago, from $92m. to $135m.

Dr. Shahar, who heads the Foreign Trade Department's African, Asian and Latin American Division, says diamonds account for approximately half the exports to Asia and Oceania. Other products are metal specialties, electronics, chemicals and textile products. Japan, Hongkong, Iran, Singapore and Australia are Israel's chief cus-tomers in the area.

Israel exporters, says Dr. Sha-har, began "discovering" those markets about two years ago, and the number of Israel businessmen who travel to countries in those areas grows from year to year. They recognize that those countries are developing at a swifter rate than other countries, he says. This is especially true of Japan,

Ministers approve second Gaza port pier

Jerusalem Post Reporter The Ministerial Economic Committee yeserday approved the construction of a second pier at Gaza

The pier, to cost about IL1.2m., should be completed within four months. The existing pier at the port has a capacity of 130,000 tons annually, most of which consists of cement imports. With the growing congestion at Ashdod and Haifa ports, it was decided to add another pier at Gaza, to enable it to handle up to 300,000 tons of freight annually. including citrus and other commoditles

The Economic Ministers also endorsed the sale of 30 one-dynam plots of land to 30 Beduin families in the Shuval and Tel Sheva areas in the Negev. The Ministers also empowered the State Lands Authority to sell more land to the

Koor's 1971 report shows MARKET improvement and problems

Koor's 1971 report reflects this soared in the report year. firm's current pragmatic policy, and year's figure. Demand for the firm's shows both the headway made by sophisticated products in developing this largest of our industrial group-countries is limited, and a drive to ings, and the problems it still has develop exports in industrialized to face. The internal reorganization - launched by the new management after the Six Day War In Africa, Iran and Cyprus, Mo- has been followed by renewed extorola Israel acts as the exporting pansion, almed especially at export markets, and by mending fences with the stock market.

The management's decision to put an end to the long dividend arrears has already boosted Koor shares quotations to about their balance sheet value. This has been accompanied by the allocation of substantial amounts to clear the balance sheet fo remnants of previous financing follies. Thus IL4m. was written off on account of losses incurred in the Autocars venture, IL7.4m. on account of depreciation in several subsidiaries (mainly the Acre Steel Works), IL3.8m. was lopped off from inflated "goodwill" items, and IL5.3m. from deferred linking charges.

Most of these write-offs were made possible by accounting gains achieved in the report year, and the clearing operation has not yet been completed, but enough has been done to indicate the management's intention to stick to sound business

Obviously this financial clearing operation is of more importance, even for Koor's shareholders, than the resumption of dividend pay-ments, which involves relatively minor amounts. Though Koor's dividends are linked to the dollar rate of exchange, they require less than ILO.5m. anually at the minimum rate of 6.5 per cent, that is 16 per cent of the company's consolidated after-tax profit last year.

TURNOVER RISES

In 1971, Koor's turnover advanced 38 per cent (to over IL1,000m., apart from turnover of companies in which Koor has a minority holding, and from the Hamashbir Industries complex managed by Koor). Its exports increased 44 per cent, and its investments 35 per cent.

Israel's industrial total. With the operating profit margin exceeding 12 per cent, the company's equity earnings should be amply provided

Unfortunately there still are se veral large problems. First, the company's overheads are high and still rising more than its income. In the past year selling expenses soared almost 80 per cent, and administrative costs almost 50 per Secondly, Koor is still shouldering exorbitant financing costs, which accounted for 45 per cent of its operating profit in 1970, and for 50 per cent in 1971. As a result, the consolidated gross profit (before taxes) increased only 4 per they were in fact in the past few cent in the past year, while the years. Such a situation must obviously impel the company to go on expanding its cooperation with other interests. However, this must also make the group's management increasingly complex, and thus hardly conforms to the philosophy of 348, minus 4, Cial Ind. opened un-Labour-dominated industry as it has been evolved to date.

NEED FOR CAUTION

There remains the question of Koor's own capital funds, which have lagged behind the group's storage declined further yesterday growing activity. At the end of to 386, losing 9 points, and A.I.P. 1969 the company's share capital and reserves accounted for 18 per cent of the consolidated balance sheet, at the end of 1971 for only 11 per cent. If the unconsolidated subsidiaries are included, the respeccent. In the current year this trend is likely to continue, for the group's profit margin — and its ability to accumulate inner reserves - is expected to have further declined. It | stands to reason that the group will have to give up some of its ambitious plans, and to concentrate even more heavily upon efficlency and profitability before mak-

Some 'economic restraint' seen after elections

Significantly, its growth performance was markedly better than LOD. — Dr. Avraham Friedman of the Business Management School of the Hebrew University expects "some sort of economic restraint" within six months after the general elections, Dr. Friedman told a panel of managers who met at the Avia Hotel yesterday to discuss patterns of wage negotiations that "the bacchanalia of wage increases" could lead to nothing else, because the authorities are not likely to stop it. The study was arranged by the Israel Management Centre and the Institute of Productivity, and was chaired by Mr. Gideon Ben Yisrael of the Ministry of Labour.

Dr. Friedman suggested that labour contracts be formally negotiated at three levels, as indeed be announced by the national insti-tutions, while the practical applica-Thirdly, the group's expansive tions should be elaborated by the policy is still braking its intention trade unions. EUROPEAN

CHANCELLOR Brandt confirmed yesterday, at his press conference, that the achievements of the European Summit, held in Paris over the weekend, were meagre and that hopes for the much talked of European unity were still dis-European unity were still dis-

It now appears that those who feared that the Summit would be somewhat premature proved to be right, and the gathering of the leaders of the nine countries comprising the enlarged Common Market demonstrated more clearly how far they are still apart than what they already have in common.

In fact, it was far too early for the leaders of Western Europe to decide upon the political future of half of the continent. Britain has barely been accepted; Denmark just voted to join and the Nine are still suffering from the shock of Norway's last-minute refusal to enter the Market. The interests of the leading European powers, notably those of Germany and France, still greatly outweigh those of the smaller nations.

France sought the dominant position in the new Union, but this was apparently refused by the other partners. There are still serious disagreements over the nature of the ties with both the U.S. and the U.S.S.R., and over the special ties which the members of the European Community may maintain with countries outside the continent.

There was more unanimity, however, on a number of important economic questions. The decision to create a European Monetary Fund in 1973, to fight the inflation now rampant in all of Europe, and to take se-rious steps towards the achievement of a monetary union by 1980, all indicate a high degree of agreement.

It is not surprising that economic problems have helped to close the ranks of the Nine The threat seen in Japanese and American imports, the promise of the Chinese market recently opened, and the fear of un-controlled competition between the various European nations have impressed the need for some coordination on the mem-view of the serious prob-In lems which have arisen over the political future of Europe, the leaders of the Nine had inclination to delve into Middle Eastern affairs. Israel certainly had expected nothing certainly had expected nothing useful from such a debate, and Foreign Minister Eban had attempted to caution some of his West European colleagues that it was unlikely to prove helpful Israel has thus bypassed another possible hurdle on the way to an agreed and peaceful settlement.

Israel is closely concerned with the idea and progress of European unity, a development that alone can restore to the European heartland the political and economic eminence it once enjoyed. Strong political, eco-nomic, cultural and historical links tie us to Europe. Any move that changes the charac-ter of Europe is, in any case, bound to have a strong effect on

S. AMERICA'S WAR AGAINST INDIANS STILL GOING ON

By JAMES NEILSON

BUENOS AIRES (Ofns). VER since Christopher Co-L lumbus set foot in the Western hemisphere 486 years ago this month the original Indian inhabitants have been in retreat. A wave of revisionist historians in the United States has made many North Americans ashamed of their ancestors' ruthiessness, and some steps have been taken to help the survivors. Few South Americans, however, feel any weight on their consciences, and in some parts of the vast continent the war is going on today. The brunt of the white man's onslaught is being borne by the Indians of the Amazon Basin. Stone-age tribesmen in parts of Colombia and Brazil are regard-ed by many settlers as vermin and slaughtered without mercy. Barlier this year a Colombian jury acquitted seven men accused of clubbing to death a numed of clubbing to death a num-ber of Indian men, women and children, because, he said "they had been taught from childhood that there is nothing wrong with killing Indians" and had there-fore "acted in good faith." After numerous protests a judge overturned the verdict and ordered the men to stand trial again, In Brazil the conflict is on a far larger scale. A great road being built through the Amazon jungle is opening up to white colonization big areas that were formerly the preserve of forest tribes, some of whom had never had contact with whites, Continusi skirmishes are taking place between road workers and In-dians, while families of settlers are being killed by bands of Indians on the warpath. Only this year did Brazilians hear of massacres perpetrated in 1963 by a gang of white in-dian-hunters employed by a landdeveloping company in the huge southern state of Matto Grosso, where rich mineral deposits are suspected beneath land up to now occupied by Indians. The hunter's victims were members of the Cintas Largas (Long Ribbons) tribe which, after making a nine-year trek to the town of Cuisbs, told their story to local officials. The white men had carried out their task with sadistic brutafity. Whole villages were measacred with machineguns. On one occasion a young Indian giri was tied upaide down between two trees and the killers hacked open her abdomen. The girl died screaming in agony.

VISITOR from London com-

A South American Indian washes her child in a primitive outdoor batte.

Earlier the whites had shot off the head of her baby, held in her arms. The Cuiaba court has ordered the arrest of the mercensries, but they are still at large.

The Indian population of Brazil is steadily dwindling. It was estimated at about two million when the white man arrived, but is now down to 100,000. Many anthropologists think the remnants will be wiped out within 20 years.

For much of this century the Brazilian Indians were protected by a special Indian service founded by Marshal Candido Rondon. Its motto was: "Die if you must, but never kill." In the 1960s his Indian Protection Service degenerated into an organization that worked hand-in-hand with land developing companies, helping them hunt down and kill Indians occupying potentially valu-

At a famous trial in 1968 the depth of the service's corruption was revealed to the world. As well as using dynamite and guns to get rid of Indians, it had also presented them was impregnated with such white nted them with clothing man's diseases as smailpox, which the Indians had no resistance to. Rivers were poisoned, people were hacked to pieces or fed to giant ants.

The Brazilian Government has been reluctant to shoulder its responsibilities towards the country's original inhabitants. It has tried to dismiss accusations of genocide as "sensationalism," and has done little to restrain individuals or government agencies that are trying to open up areas where Indians live, as it sees the development of the interior essential to its drive to make Brazil a major world power. Some Brazilians are trying to save the remaining Indiana. The best known are the brothers Orlando and Claudio Villas Boas who for over 20 years have done their best to stop the war of extermination. They run the Kingu National Park, a reservation which few white men are allowed to enter. Indian-hunters, however have sometimes penetrated the reservation to get at their prey. Now a new road is cutting through the park. General Jeronimo Bandeira de Melo, president of the official National Indian Foundation, has said: "The Indian cannot be an obstacle to progress."

In Argentina, which long boasted it was the "only white nation south of Canada," more pure Indians survive than in Brazil, and they are no longer subjected to attacks by landhungry white men. The Indiana, who only 100 years ago were powerful enough to threaten Aires and controlled nearly all of Patagonia, were finally defeated in the 1879-1883 "War of the Desert" General Julio Roca. Later he be came President of Argentina His flercest enemies were the Tehu-elches, a branch of the warlike Argucanians who fought the Spaniards to a standatill in southern Chile.

Roca was followed by ranchers who paid a good price for the ears of a dead Indian, and many of the killers who benefited were English mercenaries; Now only about 50 Tehuelches survive, but there are 80,000 Araucanians living in settlements.

Since the early 1960's Argen tina's Indians have been protected by the Government, which pro vides schools, health services and land; and they are slowly being integrated into the na-tional mainstream.

Numerous Indians

from inhabitants of the Inca empire live in their traditional way in 'Argentina's mountainous northern provinces by the Bo-livian border. They weave the brightly-coloured ponchos which are prized tourist souvenirs in Buenos Aires, and are far better off than their relatives in Peru and Bolivia. In these two countries most of the inhabitants are Indian but remain spart from national life because of their ignorance of Spanish and the techniques of modern divilization. This year the Peruvian Govern-ment launched an ambitious programme to incorporate the Indians into modern society, and proposed that secondary educa-tion should be available in the main Indian languages. So far, however, this project has barely got under way.

Paraguay has been more successful in bringing white man and Indian together than any other nation in the hemisphere. There is no stigma there at tached to being Indian and near-ly everyone in the country, whether white, mestizo or Indian, speaks the musical Indian language Guarani as a matter of course.

There is little chance of the Paraguayan success story being repeated elsewhere, however, as white and mestizo Latin Americans show no inclination at all to learn even the major Indian languages. The minor ones, such as Ona in Tierrs del Fuego, which is spoken only by a few old people, will dis-appear within a few years, taking a world with them.

A plained that our petrol — gas, if you like — is so extra-ordinarily smelly. "Haven't you ever noticed it? Wait till something comes by." We were on the Readers' letters road down the Dead Sea, peering down at the little fort of Zohar, in a nice clean, airy bit of desert. A diesel truck came by, beiching 'Amnesty' doesn't learn smoke. She didn't mean trucks she said, but cars burning expensive petrol. A car whizzed by "There." she said. We smilled the fumes, but the amell was too familiar to make much impression. We said apologetically that apparently there was some chemical process that takes place in petrol fumes under the influence of sunlight ... She answered that even in England the sun shines once in a while, and she had never smelt anything like this. She wound up, "I understand you have some very distinguished chemists discovering the mysteries of the universe at the Weizmann Institute. Couldn't one of them take off a little time to find out what the SOME Israelis travelling in Portugal recently had got to beautiful little town of Viana do Castelo, and were admiring embroidery and dolls dressed in peasant costumes in a small shop in the main square, opposite a beautiful Renaissance fountain. In between the goods for sale they saw, pasted to the window, a newspaper clipping of the photographs of the murdered hostages from the Olympic Ga in Munich. It was two weeks after the event and the paper was a little yellow and brittle already, but the faces were unmistakable. Next to them was a poem "As Olimpiades ensombradas en Mu-" - Shadow on the Olympics. One of the party knew Portuguese. Two of the verses ran, roughly:

A band of Palestinians With blood-cruel faces, Assassinated The young Jewish aces,

The pain at this horror, Confounds every nation. Barbaric this is, and No Liberation, Inside the shop was a small frail man well over 70, who said his name was Augusto Valenca. and that he had written he poem himself. He said he felt one must react to what is happening in the world, and must make it known that one reacts. 'It is the least we can do. I express my feelings in poems, sometimes in praise but nowadays unfortunately mostly in horror." He pulled some more typed poems and yellowed press clippings from a thick file. The local newspaper in Viana sometimes prints his works, together with the press report that had caused him to write them. In one, there was condemnation of the vandel who damaged the Pieta in St. Peter's Cathedral In another, biting irony at girls in bikinis bathing in the Trevi Fountain. But also admiration of a new children's playground opened in Viana, and hom-age to the astronauts on the Moon.

His curiosity was aroused when he heard his visitors came from Israel. Of course they could copy the poem. If it was published in Israel he would be happy to receive a copy. No, he did not think there were any Jewu living in Viana, he had been there all his life and would surely know them. "Meranos? I don't know what you mean." In fact a colony of Jews from Catalonia is said to have settled in Vians in 1439, but who is to say what became of them.

THE man who delivers The Post to a colleague in Tel Aviv was chuckling happily one morning. What's so funny? she asked. "Another subscriber up the street was also outside when I got there just now. He growled at me and said I had given him "Ha'aretz" by mistake." "Still, what's so funny?" —

"He was just holding the paper upside down."
